Change of Troupe for La Luna's 10th International Festival of Hispanic Theater

Due to unforeseen difficulties, Las Calles de Nunca Olvidar (The Streets One Can't Forget) by Dominican Republic troupe La Manzana Envenenada will not be a part of Teatro de la Luna's 10th International Festival of Hispanic Theater. Instead, La Luna has the great pleasure to present Mujer en Rojo Vivo (Woman on Fire) by Puerto Rican troupe Raul Mendez, Inc. Productions, and starring well-known Dominican actress Xiomara Rodríguez. This production will be at Gunston Arts Center Theatre 2 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 15-17. Performances are at 8:00 p.m., with a Saturday matinee at 3:00 p.m. The show is in Spanish with live English dubbing.

In Woman on Fire, the audience is submerged in the daily life of a young woman, who, like everyone, is searching for happiness and love. Humor and laughter combine in this mirror of society.

Teatro de la Luna is celebrating the 10th anniversary of its International Festival of Hispanic Theater this season. This festival is the Greater Washington, DC area's only regular international theater festival, with renowned and award-winning troupes coming from throughout the Hispanic world.
